County Board votes to pay spouse expenses

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

The Lee County Board today on a 15 to 9 vote agreed to permit county officeholders to take their spouses to conventions at county expense after State's Atty. Patrick E. Ward revealed difference between the $350 he charged the county and the amount of an itemized statement of $260 was the cost of taking his wife and the wife of one of his assistants to a State's Attorney's Convention.

Ward made the admission in answer to charges leveled by Donald F. Burke, District 3, about the differences between the two amounts.

The state's attorney also said he had pointed out to the Claims Committee that the $90 difference was for taking the wives to the State's Attorney's Convention and told them he would pay the amount himself if they did not want to include the $90 in the amount the county reimbursed him.

Near the close of the morning session Burke, in addition to raising the question about the $350 charged, explained the first assistant state's attorney conducts his private law practice using the Courthouse as his business address and listing the state's attorney's telephone number as his law practice telephone number.

Burke also charged that secretaries in the state's attorney's office notarize documents for Ward's private law practice.

Ward responded by asserting all of his secretaries are notary publics and notarize documents for anyone, including other attorneys.

He declared his wife works for him in his private law practice as a full-time secretary. Ward contended his first assistant state's attorney, David Mandrgoc, conducts his private law practice from his home and that he hires outside secretarial help. "He even does some of his own typing," Ward noted.

He testily asserted, "It is grossly improper to level charges in a newspaper against a public official's office when he knows the person is 1,000 miles away and unable to respond to the charges."

"It is grossly unfair to level charges which cannot be substantiated."

"It is grossly unfair to use the County Board as a vehicle for an attack like this."

Burke replied his inquiry was a proper check on the executive branch of government by the legislative branch.

Edward Conroy, District 3, made an impassioned speech in which he decried the "ozone of paranoia which deletes the efficiency of elected officials and which hinders their work."

"This contributes to the low rating which elected officials have," contended Conroy.

"Every person who takes the oath of public office acts upon a stage and any misdeeds should be upheld for view but also good works done by them should also be equally noted."

Conroy charged "Vindictive motives void any value derived from any acts."

He called on all board members to "reassess motives and take only whatever action will enhance the common good of all."

Conroy exhorted, "We are finally judged by a higher court than the electors."

Charles Murphy, District 1, recalled "There was a witch hunt conducted against Henry S. Dixon when he was state's attorney and he answered all allegations leveled against him. I think it is proper for the state's attorney to tell us what the difference is between the $350 which he collected and the itemized statement of $260."

It was then Ward revealed the $90 was the amount spent to take their wives to the convention.

County Clerk John Stouffer said he has never charged the county for taking his wife to a convention and Sheriff Ray Nehring defended the idea for the county to pay for spouses going to conventions.

The board heard a letter read in which the Village of Paw Paw board members claim there is an increase in crime in the southeastern part of the county because the village is located about 40 miles from Dixon and does not get the proper amount of police protection from the sheriff and because of the "encroachment from the east of the Chicago suburbs."

The village board charged "The area long has been neglected by Lee County law enforcement agencies."

The Paw Paw village officials requested a substation of the sheriff's department be established in the village and that a deputy and a patrol car be assigned there.

The village officials offered space in the community building to house the substation.

Nehring told the board he had met with the Paw Paw board and put in process a trial Friday and Saturday night special patrol in the village.

He reported two special deputies take a squad car to the village each Friday and Saturday to patrol Paw Paw streets. Nehring informed the board Paw Paw "is broke" and cannot afford to negotiate a contract with the county such as those in operation in Amboy and Ashton.

He also said the Friday and Saturday patrols are scheduled to end next weekend, but the board suggested he continue them until some other solution is worked out.

The matter was referred to the Executive Committee.

John Frankovich of Joliet, a partner of the financiers who purchased the county property near Eldena which once was used for the nursing home, appeared before the board to ask the current payment be deferred until June 1976.

The board earlier had approved deferring the payment until October 1975, providing Frankovich pays the interest on the contract.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee after James P. Green, District 4, noted if the county agrees to defer the payment until June 1976, two years will have gone by without the county receiving a payment.

Another problem arises because in June 1976 two payments will be due unless the county agrees to set back the deferred payment to the end of the contract, that is, extend it for one year.

Frankovich requested this and Green suggested he negotiate in October to make a token payment in lieu of the county extending time for the full payment to be made.

In other business the board accepted the resignation of Winston McReynolds, District 3, for health reasons;

—Ordered the locks be changed on an outside door to the Courthouse after it was learned that an employee of the County Treasurer's car was stolen along with the owner's

Council okay to site for planned Farmers Market

The Dixon City Council has given its blessing to a Farmer's Market in Dixon on the parking lot across from City Hall.

Al Vandenberg, making the request in behalf of the Retail Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, said "This is the garden spot of the world, but we haven't been able to buy fresh vegetables from the producers."

Producers are unable to sell to stores in the area because the buying is done on another level, he explained. This will give area producers a chance to market their produce directly to the consumers, he added. He called it the start of a long-range program and described such endeavors in other areas.

The council did have some misgivings. Walter Lohse asked what the grocery members of the Chamber of Commerce thought about it.

Robert Nellis, accompanying Vandenberg to sample council opinion, said the Retail Bureau had recommended the project. Vandenberg said sales tax would be collected every day at the close of the market.

Arthur Tofte wanted to know how those not peddling their own produce could be kept out of the picture, saying it would be "discrimination."

Vandenberg replied that producers only would be allowed to sell.

Lohse asked if the plan would interfere with the regular traffic in the parking lot and would the cost of the meters be paid.

Vandenberg said producers could be charged the 25 cents for a five-hour market day, but Nellis took the view this would be a downtown happening and would probably help other downtown sales.

Vandenberg said it was planned to hold the market every Saturday morning from now until the growing season closes and fresh produce is no longer available.

Jim G. Burke said he would give the plan a qualified okay, hoping supermarkets "won't descend on us."

Vandenberg replied "All supermarkets chose to leave the downtown area."

The council agreed to go along with the request and work out the details with a "market master" appointed by the Chamber of Commerce.

Session on finance consumer

DEKALB—Carl Dalker, executive vice president of the Illinois Consumer Finance Association, will give a presentation on consumer finance at Northern Illinois University on Thursday.

Dalker will be representing an organization that includes many of the banks, savings and loans and consumer finance companies in Illinois among its membership.

The presentation will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the auditorium of NIU's Swen Parson Library.

Dalker's visit is part of four workshops on economic education sponsored by the Office for Economic Education at NIU.

Lohse explained his switch: "To increase my information on the matter I looked over the proposed addition. The street would run into a T at either end. There is no way it would become a street for through traffic. It will have to carry only subdivision traffic."

Lohse's reasoning continued "A home buyer can see what the street in front of the house is like. If he doesn't like it he doesn't have to buy."

Then Lohse threw in the clincher. "I measured the street in front of my house (816 N. Dixon Ave.). It measured only 22 feet. I will vote for the plat with a variance for 31-foot streets."

Despite a plea by John Caluwaert, attorney representing Beeler and Beeler, the petitioner, that as early as 1969, a previous council had approved final engineering drawings on the entire subdivision, Tofte and Densmore maintained their stance against 31-foot streets.

Caluwaert reminded the council that on Feb. 14, 1975 a Plan Commission recommendation for approval of the general plan and plat won unanimous council approval.

Acting on that approval, Caluwaert stated, the developer sought and won state Environmental Protection Agency and federal Housing and Urban Development blessings on the project.

The bidding process was completed because of the approval, he continued, saying "We are relying on you not to renege on previous approval."

Ford candidacy official; vows to conduct above-board campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford, speaking from his White House office, announced Tuesday his candidacy for election in 1976 and promised "to conduct an open and above-board campaign."

In a brief statement, Ford also said that he would "not forget my initial pledge to be President of all the people" and declared a determination never to neglect the presidency as "my first duty."

The President, who first indicated nearly nine months ago that he would seek an elected term in the White House, said he had "the strong support of my family and friends" in the decision to run.

There had been speculation Ford might sidestep next year's presidential race because of surgery his wife Betty underwent last fall for breast cancer.

In his announcement, Ford said that in 13 past campaigns for his old House seat "my basic conviction has been that the best politics is always to do the best job I can for all the people."

He concluded his statement with these words:

"I see no reason to change that successful philosophy. I expect to work hard, campaign forthrightly and do the very best I can for America in order to finish the job I have begun."

Asked by a newsman after the announcement if he was going to win next year, Ford replied, "I always assume that."

The President made his announcement seated at his desk in the Oval Office, which was crowded with reporters, television film cameras and four key figures in his campaign organization.

At the same time Ford announced the enlistment of Robert C. Moot, former assistant secretary of defense, to be treasurer of his formal campaign organization, known as "The President Ford Committee."

Moot was present for the announcement, as were campaign committee chairman Howard "Bo" Callaway, finance chairman David Packard and Dean Burch, who served as interim chairman of the organization.

Ford said he had authorized these four "to seek my nomination with three qualifications, which I want all Americans to know."

"... I intend to conduct an open and above-board campaign, both for the nomination and for the presidency. I want every delegate and every vote I can get that can be won by my cause within the spirit and the letter of the law and without compromising the principles for which I have stood all of my public life."

Ford continued:

"Second, I will not forget my initial pledge to be President of all the people. I believe I can best represent my party. But this will be futile unless I unite the majority of Americans who acknowledge no absolute party loyalty. Therefore, I will seek the support of all who believe in the fundamental values of duty, decency and constructive debate on the great issues we face together as a free people."

In pledging to give full attention to his official duties, Ford said:

"Third I am determined never to neglect my first duty as President. After 11 months in this office I know full well that the obligations of the presidency require most of the stamina and concentration one human being can muster. But it is also the duty of all Americans to participate fully in our free elective process, and I will do so enthusiastically."

Ford is the first man to become vice president and then President without election.

A congressman from Michigan for a quarter century, he was named vice president by former President Richard M. Nixon in 1973 when Spiro T. Agnew resigned because of a graft scandal. Ford became President on Aug. 9, 1974, when Nixon resigned under the weight of Watergate.

Before he became vice president, Ford planned to serve one more term in the House of Representatives, then retire from politics. As vice-president designate, he told Congress he would not run in 1976.

Tape measure decision

City Council approves subdivision plat

By WAYNE LYON

Finance Commissioner Walter Lohse's tape measure may have been the deciding issue as the Dixon City Council, on a 3-2 vote, approved the final plat of the third addition to the Brinton-Highlands Subdivision Monday night at City Hall.

At a Plan Commission meeting June 25, Lohse had joined fellow commissioners Arthur Tofte and Thomas A. Densmore in expressing concern about 31-foot streets in the plat. The subdivision code calls for 36-foot streets.

Lohse explained his switch: "To increase my information on the matter I looked over the proposed addition. The street would run into a T at either end. There is no way it would become a street for through traffic. It will have to carry only subdivision traffic."

Lohse's reasoning continued "A home buyer can see what the street in front of the house is like. If he doesn't like it he doesn't have to buy."

Then Lohse threw in the clincher. "I measured the street in front of my house (816 N. Dixon Ave.). It measured only 22 feet. I will vote for the plat with a variance for 31-foot streets."

Despite a plea by John Caluwaert, attorney representing Beeler and Beeler, the petitioner, that as early as 1969, a previous council had approved final engineering drawings on the entire subdivision, Tofte and Densmore maintained their stance against 31-foot streets.

Caluwaert reminded the council that on Feb. 14, 1975 a Plan Commission recommendation for approval of the general plan and plat won unanimous council approval.

Acting on that approval, Caluwaert stated, the developer sought and won state Environmental Protection Agency and federal Housing and Urban Development blessings on the project.

The bidding process was completed because of the approval, he continued, saying "We are relying on you not to renege on previous approval."

ious approval."

Tofte repeated his opposition, "I have not changed my mind. We have the ordinance and it is time to start enforcing it. We approved a preliminary plat and this is the final plat. I want to follow the code to make the addition better, safer and in the best interests of the citizens of Dixon."

Densmore, too, stood fast. "I respect the opinion of City Attorney Tomas Magdich that sidewalks along Brinton Avenue should not be required. I am willing to forego crosswalks, but my main concern is the width of the streets. I think they should be 37 feet, but I'm willing to settle for 36 feet."

Vic Radant, representing Family Tailored Homes, who market the houses for Beeler and Beeler, said he thought green space, rather than street width was more important to home buyers in this environmental conscious age.

Jim G. Burke said he felt the "overriding guideline in the issue is fairness."

He added, "I'd like to see 40-foot streets, but the city has gone along on everything and previously approved 31-foot streets. We shouldn't make the developer stop and revise the plans now. We'd just be hollerin' after the horse was out of the barn."

Mayor William L. Naylor said he had attended two Plan Commission meetings on the issue. "I haven't changed my mind," he offered, "I'll go along with the recommendation."

He joined Burke and Lohse in approving the project.

The council indicated it will approve a request by the Lee County Council on Aging for $10,000 in federal revenue sharing funds for a drop-in center and bus depot in downtown Dixon.

The request, made by Donald F. Burke, treasurer of the Council on Aging, asked for $10,000 each year for a two-year period. Council sentiment, however, is for a one-year funding and then have the request renewed.

Densmore called the project "very fine and worthy of our support. It would be something to help people who quite often don't get our help."

Lohse reminded the council that revenue sharing funds were being used to balance the city budget.

"I've studied the request carefully. My initial reaction was negative and it remains that way," he stated. "I've talked to a limited number of elderly people for their reaction and I feel it would be used by a limited number of people."

Tofte commented he was in favor of funding the project for one year.

Jim G. Burke said "If we had expended a great deal on social programs I might feel differently, but with the high-rise for the elderly at least a mile and a half from town, I feel we should go along for a year and participate in the program."

Naylor said he favored funding the program for a year and added the Council on Aging should give thought to moving the Social Security and Veteran's offices into the drop-in center so they would be closer to the people they serve.

A Council on Aging representative will meet with Magdich to work out the details of the plan.

Earlier in the session the council gave approval to the appropriation ordinance for the fiscal year starting May 1 and ending April 30, 1976.

The ordinance called for $5,000,906 in total appropriations, $1,170,521 from general taxes and $3,830,385 from other sources. A bid to demolish the Scrivens Building was awarded to Mighell Construction Co., for $17,996.

Tofte complained he thought the bid was "higher than we had taken about," saying he remembered something in the neighborhood of $10,000.

Donald Huffman of Willet Hofmann Associates, engineers, explained that the actual demolition would cost $9,638.40, and grading and landscaping would make up the difference.

In other action, the council:

—Approved ordinances granting zoning variances to the Northern Illinois Development Corp. and Howard and Mary Swegle.

—Accepted the annual report of the city treasurer and annual audit.

—Awarded bids for replacement aerators at the sewage treatment plant to Aqua-Aerobic Systems for $15,320.

—Awarded to Ladd Freeport Blacktop Co., the bid for the sewage extension to Raynor Manufacturing Co. for $151,915.50. Raynor will pay 25 per cent of the cost and the remainder will be paid by the city from revenue sharing funds.

—Gave Ladd Construction Co., the contract to construct a parking lot and drive at the new city garage site on Ill. 38 for $17,800.

—Also awarded to Ladd for $17,870.80 the job of surfacing the T hangar at Dixon Airport.

—Entered into an agreement with the State Department of Transportation for maintenance of state highways within the city.

—Approved payment of labor and outside claims in the amount of $120,344.71.

Magdich resigns; seek new attorney

The Dixon City Council is seeking applicants for the post of city attorney.

Tomas Magdich, the present city attorney has resigned the post, effective Aug. 1.

Mayor William L. Naylor announced the resignation at Monday night's meeting of the City Council at City Hall.

Magdich said he was resigning to spend more time with his family and devote more time to his private practice.

Council members decided to seek applications for the $8,200-per-year position from any qualified attorney.

Soviets smother U.S. with spies

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The FBI's New York arrest of alleged Soviet spies Sarkis O. Paskalian and Sahag K. Dedeyan, charged with delivering United Nations Soviet official Eduard B. Charchyan a 70-page secret NATO defense analysis, reveals again the nervy world of U.S.S.R. espionage in the United States.

Paskalian was recruited as a spy 13 years ago while in Soviet Armenia. The KGB trained him first at a secret center near Kutchinsk, outside Moscow, and then supertrained him at Borkov, 40 kilometers from the city. There the cover used is the immense (misnamed) Aerodynamic Institute. Paskalian was housed in an old 15th century czarist chateau across the Vereyka River. He was one of a full 10,000 so trained.

Paskalian always kept a glass or cup in front of his mouth when speaking in a restaurant—a dead giveaway that he was a foreign agent. An expert FBI lip reader can tell what they are saying from several tables away. A neon tube nearby will jam nearly any microtransmitter. KGB agents always use a public telephone that is near a neon sign if they can. Paskalian did so.

Although unrevealed, the FBI carefully searched Paskalian and Dedeyan for the emergency suicide pill, the Russian version of the Nazi Gestapo's "KCB" pellet. It combines concentrated hydrocyanic compounds so powerful that suicide is practically instantaneous—even the fumes can kill.

Soviet agents also sometimes carry a small pressure-packed canister with odorless gas. It was used, for example, at a dinner in Odessa. The American Naval, Marine and Air Attaches from our Moscow Embassy were all knocked out this way. Their papers and effects were searched and photographed before they regained consciousness.

Typical of the "cells" of Soviet espionage in the United States, neither Paskalian nor Dedeyan knew U.S. Air Force Sgt. James D. Wood, 35, the last Soviet spy caught red-handed.

A "rizident," operating from a "rezidentura," is the Soviet term for a chief KGB officer in a Soviet Embassy abroad. First Secretary Vladimir I. Tchernyshev was the "resident" in the Soviet Embassy in Washington. Tchernyshev was meeting Wood in New York City when our FBI agents discovered hundreds of highly classified U.S. military documents in Wood's rental car.

Wood listed his home town as Tacoma, and had been in the U.S. Air Force 18 years. But he served in the top-secret Air Force Office of Special Investigation and pleaded guilty in 1973 to attempting to pass secret documents to Tchernyshev.

The United States is the only country Russia really fears and the KGB sent Paskalian here in the summer of 1971. He was instructed to meet alleged Soviet intelligence agent Petros Petrosyan. To confirm their identities to each other in their rendezvous they produced dollar notes bearing consecutive serial numbers.

Paskalian was also instructed to contact Dedeyan. Dedeyan worked for Operations Research, Inc., Silver Springs, Md., and was an associate mathematician at Johns Hopkins University's Applied Science Laboratory. There he prepared a secret study: "Vulnerability Analysis: U.S. Reinforcement of NATO."

A "case officer," or "handler," is the masked link between the agent and his control at the espionage management level. And just as Tchernyshev was Wood's "case officer," so was Charchyan the case officer for Paskalian and Dedeyan.

Within a period of only a few months not too long ago, worldwide, 107 Soviet agents were uncovered. Forty-five had diplomatic cover like Tchernyshev and Charchyan, 30 more were called journalists, and the Soviet passed off 15 as businessmen, five more as Aeroflot airline executives and 12 as cultural experts.

The FBI finds that Soviet Embassy staffs contain anywhere from 50 to 80 per cent espionage personnel and that at least 80 per cent of the U.S.S.R. and Soviet-bloc delegations at the United Nations in New York are intelligence agents and not diplomats at all.

None are so blind as those who will not see. But all this reveals again the nearly incredible depth of Soviet espionage in our country, now more intensely operated here (indisputable fact) than at any time in history.

Food stamp reform bill

By RONALD REAGAN

Ten years ago the Food Stamp Act was passed to help America's needy get a nutritious diet. Today, the program is so far out of control its operations resemble a madhatter's tea party.

Help may be on the way. A bipartisan Food Stamp Reform Act of 1975 has been introduced in Congress which could bring the program under control and save the taxpayers $2 billion a year, while at the same time increasing benefits for the truly needy an average of 29 per cent.

In 1965 there were fewer than half a million food stamp recipients. The program cost $36 million that year.

This year, it's estimated there will be 19 million Americans on food stamps at a cost to the taxpayer of $5.2 billion—an increase of more than 14,000 per cent!

That first year, one in every 439 Americans was on food stamps; today, it's one in 13, and soaring upward. It could be much worse; potentially one-fourth of the entire population—52.8 million persons—is technically eligible.

Are there really that many poor and hungry people to feed? No, the problem lies with the liberal, loose eligibility standards for food stamps.

Last year in California, I appointed a governor's task force to study the Food Stamp Program, along with one which was reviewing the effectiveness of our 1971 Aid - To - Families - With - Dependent - Children (AFDC) welfare reforms (we had reduced the rolls by nearly 400,000, while raising grants an average of 43 per cent).

The food stamp task force found that many college students were technically eligible and drawing stamps, though they came from wealthy families. There was no maximum income limit to qualify for food stamps. There was no minimum age requirement, so that teen-age runaways living in communes could even qualify. And, unlike the welfare program, food stamp rules did not prohibit the rearrangement of one's assets in order to qualify.

Other problems involved lax physical security and movement of the stamps and inadequate counterfeiting safeguards.

Most of the reforms the California task force recommended, however, had to be accomplished at the federal level, since the program is federally mandated.

For several months a group of U.S. senators and congressmen has been studying these recommendations and others and has incorporated a number of them in the new reform bill now co-sponsored by 59 members of the House and 17 senators.

The objective is to reverse the explosive trend of the program. They are alarmed that more than half the potential recipients—57 per cent—have incomes above the poverty line.

Their bill spells out in detail the reforms needed to bring it under control. Basically, the bill relates eligibility to that of AFDC and general welfare programs providing for similar eligibility standards. This should eliminate, for example, the voluntarily unemployed, strikers, college students subsidized by their parents and people who transfer assets to others in order to qualify.

Among other things, the bill would require able-bodied recipients without children under age 6 to register for work and seek it, or to enter community work training programs if their state has them. This is not required now, hence the bill's objective: no rewards for idleness.

If the bill passes, the program will move out of the Department of Agriculture, which got it in the first place because the intent was to feed the needy from agricultural surpluses. The surpluses are long gone, but the program now accounts for more than 60 per cent of the USDA budget. It would move to Health, Education and Welfare, which administers the rest of the nation's welfare programs.

While bringing the food stamp mess under control, the government will upgrade the diet formula for recipients, raising coupon allotments by 29 per cent, and will reduce stamp costs for the aged.

Rarely enough these days does Congress consider the hard-pressed taxpayer. With this bill it does, while also helping the truly needy (not to be confused with the wanty, a far different and much larger group).

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

Although I am a poor letter composer and writer, I should like to express my comments and congratulations.

These comments I express are concerning our area cemeteries. The beauty of them, their care, and conveyances of the Petunia theme carried out by both of them. I am speaking of Oakwood and Chapel Hill Cemeteries. There is definitely no conflict of interest involved. We all have loved ones, relatives, friends, veterans of all branches of the services of the United States of America interred in both places.

My congratulations and compliments to the superintendent and caretakers for a job well done. Although the cemeteries are not mobile, I think they could be perused by the parade judges and judged in accordance with the parade entries. My vote is for at least a dozen roses for Ed Slaine and crew and also Ray Jordan and all for a job well done. It's been hard work adequately accomplished.

I have discussed this with other persons and feel they have been pleased also of the same opinion. County resident, but believer in the city of Dixon.

Harold L. Reed
Rt. 1
P.S. A beautiful job was done for Memorial Day, also.

Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS— "It was a chaotic session which started off in a mess but was not the most or least productive," commented State Sen. David Shapiro, R-Amboy, when asked to assess the recently adjourned session of the General Assembly.

The period was publicized as having more bills filed than during any other session and Shapiro predicted there will be rules changes to screen legislation offered.

"There are also many bills which should never be filed in the General Assembly," observed the senator.

Hindsight reveals Mayor Richard J. Daley's abandonment of Clyde Choate, D-Anna, as candidate for speaker of the House on the 38th ballot caused Daley backers trouble throughout the session.

The issue was not settled until the 93rd ballot when William J. Redmond, D-Bensonville, who was acceptable to both Daley and Gov. Walker, was elected with the help of seven Republicans.

In the Senate Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, had some trouble getting to be president of the body when independent and rebellious suburban Democrats forced Partee to accept Terry Bruce of Olney in a leadership post.

The so-called "Crazy Eight" did not, however, jell into a cohesive bloc as did the hard-core Choate supporters in the House.

For instance, the "Crazy Eight," along with the Republican minority could have scuttled Daley's remap plan for the Congressional representation in the Senate had they held together.

The remap was seen as a Daley ploy to get rid of Abner Mikva, D-Evanston, a maverick Democrat who is a critic of the Chicago mayor.

The reapportionment plan passed out of the Senate but was scuttled in the House by the Choate group and the Republicans.

The rift among the Democratic majorities in each house are seen as a reason Mayor Daley lost the bill to prevent crossover voting in party primaries and also the Crosstown Expressway.

Another victory for Walker is seen in the approval of the $791 million downstate highway construction program, which was passed over the opposition of Daley backers with the help of Choate supporters, other dissident Democrats and Republicans.

It was not a good session for the Mayor of Chicago, who has traditionally wielded much influence in the General Assembly through his lieutenants who are representatives and senators.

If it was not Daley's year, it also was not a clear victory for the governor.

Walker wanted and didn't get: a $4.1 billion accelerated building program.

—Consumer and criminal justice bills which were defeated.

—Was denied funds for his Office of Special Investigating.

—Had his request for a 6 per cent cut of his budget denied and a bill was passed to hold back 8 per cent from all tax-supported general revenue funds.

It was a session in which the Republicans had hoped only to hang on and keep the Democrats from getting everything they wanted.

For them, it was not as bad as could have predicted before the fratricidal battle for speaker of the House developed among Democrats.

If there was a winner between the mayor and the governor, it was the governor.

Readers might recall it was Gov. Walker who first opposed Choate in his bid for the speakership and was able to prevent him from getting it.

But it was the Mayor of Chicago who incurred the unforgiven wrath of Choate when Daley forces dropped him in favor of Redmond.

In another sense, they are all home licking their wounds, for no one was a clear-cut winner.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

Any hopes the employees of the Lee County Courthouse may have had for air-conditioning of their offices went out the window this morning when the Lee County Supervisors decided to abandon all thoughts of air-conditioning the building this year.

Professional golfer Jack Nicklaus, who shot a 73 Wednesday at the British Open, will be in Dixon July 20. He will give a nine-hole exhibition match at the Dixon Country Club that morning. Complementary tickets are available.

25 YEARS AGO

Dixon High School graduates of the class of 1950 from "around the corner" and as far away from Honolulu will gather here next Thursday night for their 20th reunion. Only one member of the 113-strong graduating class has died in the last 20 years, and all but three have been notified of the affair.

100 YEARS AGO

The horse fair was a success financially, making a little over the expenses. Mr. Sterling, the secretary, deserves credit for the ability with which he managed the business.

Four of the Sisters who teach the Catholic school of this city left last week for Sinsinawa Mount, Wis., where about two hundred will spend the hot summer months.

Couple exchange marriage vows

Miss Cheryl L. Puffenbarger became the wife of Rodney J. Kipping in a recent ceremony at St. Anne's Catholic Church. The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Puffenbarger, Dixon. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd S. Kipping, Dixon.

The Rev. Donald Ahles performed the afternoon ceremony before an altar arrangement of pink gladioli and daisy pompons. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Arthur Mills, organist, and Robert Schepers, vocalist.

The bride wore a traditional floor-length gown of imported silk organza over taffeta fashioned with a fitted bodice trimmed with Nottingham lace. A cathedral-length train with panels of lace accented the gown's A-line silhouette skirt. The bride's headpiece was a Juliet bonnet of lace touched with pearl-held layers of imported English illusion. As the bride was escorted to the altar she carried a nosegay of white daisies, white Elegance carnations and pink garnet roses with baby's breath and pink streamers.

Mrs. Gary Cunningham, Dixon, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary Jo Kipping and Miss Kathy Graffy, Dixon. The attendants were attired in semi-halter gowns of orchid print complemented by long fitted jackets with matching picture hats. Their nosegays were a combination of white daisies, purple statice and baby's breath.

Serving as best man was Brad Kipping, Dixon. Groomsman were Gary Cunningham and Richard Russell, and ushers for the ceremony were Darrell Puffenbarger and David Fischer, all Dixon residents.

The newlyweds were honored at a reception in the Dixon Elks Club where Misses Sally Long and Paula Duffy, Dixon, served cake, Miss Sue Levan and Miss Debbie Veleke, Dixon, served coffee and punch, and placed in charge of the guest book was Mrs. Robin Cardot.

Following their honeymoon trip to Wisconsin the couple will reside at 206 Hubbel Drive, Dixon.

The new Mrs. Kipping is a graduate of Dixon High School and is presently employed at Orchard Glen Nursing Home.

Mr. Kipping is also a graduate of Dixon High School and is employed by Eller and Willey Block Company.

The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd J. Kipping, honored the couple on the eve of their wedding at a rehearsal dinner in the Skyline Lounge.

A miscellaneous shower was given by the bridal attendants, Mrs. Gary Cunningham, Misses Mary Jo Kipping and Kathy Graff.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband will not let me have a cat because he claims they are dirty and sneaky. He's always saying, "I can't stand sneaky animals or sneaky people."

Long ago I discovered this man who couldn't stand sneakiness was sneaking off to a motel room at least twice a month with his bookkeeper. He gave himself away when he came home wearing new under-shorts, of a different brand than I buy him. I couldn't figure out who his playmate was so the next time he made an excuse to leave town, I followed him and saw him pick up the office tramp.

Now it is four years later and he is pulling the same stunt with his boss's wife. He feels that so long as he's good to me, brings home a paycheck and a few gifts now and then, I should let him do his thing.

I can't believe you would stick up for a man like this. I'm 38, married 19 years, and I don't nag. I do nearly anything he asks and he treats me this way. Why?? He says, "NO divorce. I'd miss you too much." How does that grab you?—Feeling Low

Dear Feeling Low: Your little boy who needs those periodic ego boosts is a pathetic case. And he has millions of fraternity brothers, from Maine to California.

If you really want a divorce you can get one. He doesn't have to "give" you one. You have grounds aplenty and you know it.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been working for the same dentist for almost eight years and I've decided it's time I spoke out in the interest of Mr. John Q. Public—Number One Sucker.

Many patients don't realize the value of the gold in their mouths. When a dentist suggests that a tooth with a gold crown or an inlay be refilled or replaced, the old gold should be given to the patient because he paid for it. My dentist says he throws it away, but I've seen him get as much as $600 for gold he was supposed to have "thrown away."

All dentists should give their patients the old crowns, inlays or bridges and inform the patients of the approximate value. Dentists KNOW the value because they pay current gold prices every day.

Please print this letter. Hundreds of people are being ripped every day because they are uninformed and I think it's lousy.—No Goldigger

Dear No G.D.: Your advice is worth its weight in gold. You may not realize it, but you performed a valuable service today, and I thank you from the bottom of my inlays.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell the lady who is afraid her poodle is a homosexual not to give up. My sister had a Boston bull. She was eager for him to mate and found the perfect bride.

The first time the "honeymooners" were together, Goober played dead, ran around the room, barked and then went to sleep. Sis tried three times to get Goover married—each time watching and hoping. No success. When she left Goober and his fourth bride alone overnight something must have happened because three months later Goober was the proud father of a lively litter. Suggest privacy, please.—Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dear Grand: O.K. Turn out the lights and leave him alone with a girl. That's my advice to the lady who thinks her poodle is gay.

Homemakers News

By FRANCES G. REEVES
Home Extension Adviser

If the freezer stops—or you are delayed on the trip home from the grocery store—frozen foods may become partially thawed.

Should you eat them immediately, refreeze, or dispose of them—especially those that have completely thawed?

While the quality is always reduced when refreezing, foods can be refrozen if they still contain ice crystals or have been kept below 40 degrees F. Do not refreeze any food that has been thawed more than two days. Any food that has warmed above that temperature should not be refrozen.

You can refreeze thawed fruits if they still taste and smell good. When they start to spoil, fruits usually ferment. But this fermentation will not make fruits dangerous to eat, although it may spoil their flavor.

Thawed fruits can also be used in cooking and baking or for making jams, jellies and preserves.

Refreeze thawed meats and poultry with caution. Examine each package and get rid of the food if the color or odor is poor or questionable. It is dangerous to eat meats and poultry when they start to spoil. If there is no sign of spoilage, tests show you can refreeze beef, veal and lamb. Of course, rewrap any package that has been opened.

Refreeze vegetables, shellfish, and cooked fish only if they haven't thawed completely—when ice crystals are present. People should never refreeze thawed fish and shellfish. You may not be able to tell by the odor whether these foods have spoiled.

Do not use melted ice cream. Once the freezer is working—or you have arrived home with the partially thawed foods—refreeze the food quickly. If the freezer is full of warmed foods, it is best to take the food to a commercial locker plant for a quick refreeze. Chill to 0 degrees F. or below before returning the food to your home freezer. Wrap the food well with newspapers and blankets before transporting.

To refreeze food at home, turn the adjustable temperature control to its coldest position so that the freezer will run continuously. Place the warmer packages against the refrigerated surfaces if possible, but be sure that air can circulate around them. After the food is well frozen, return the temperature control to its usual setting.

Then use refrozen foods as soon as possible.

Overbuying and hoarding by consumers and black marketing somewhere en route between manufacturer and retailer have led to a pseudo-shortage of lids in many localities.

While the supply is tight, it is expected to be sufficient for anticipated demand.

Consumers who purchased more than needed for this canning season are asked to share with a neighbor. Those who are still searching should not panic and should avoid the black market. Lids should be available when the crop is ready.

Home canners have reported some problems with the use of plastic lids.

Before buying, read carefully the information provided by the manufacturer as to the recommended use of these plastic lids. They may not be satisfactory for all types of canning. Then carefully follow instructions for using that particular brand of lid. Instructions do vary.

Before buying any of the new-type closures advertised as home canning sealers, make sure they have both FDA clearance and reliable test documentations.

FDA clearance means only that the materials used are not harmful to human health. This does not mean that the lid has been tested by government or consumer agencies for safety under food processing methods and handling. Look for both before you buy.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY—All my life I've had trouble taking pills; As I grew older I crushed all pills and dissolved them in liquids. Now I've discovered that by taking a bite of something to eat I can get the pill or capsule in my mouth and swallow both together. No more problems. I even use this when giving pills to my dog—I put one in a bit of dog food so he swallows it. —MARIE.

DEAR POLLY—This past winter I needed a cover-all apron and had the inspiration to make one out of a worn summer dress. This also saved me from the risk of getting a pattern I did not like. I decided to use a pretty dark blue print dress made of "no iron" fabric. I took the sleeves off, slit it all the way up the back and hemmed the armholes and sides of the back opening. A buttonhole was made at the top of the newly slit back and a large button sewn on. Ties were made for both sides and I was in business. I enjoy this apron and it is really a coverup. —OLIVE.

Let's Talk About Decorating

By Karleen Bensinger

Choosing Furniture For Your Home

Furnishing your home can be both challenging and fun. The furniture you choose will say a lot about you as a person. It will also reflect the life-style of your family.

The first rule to remember when buying furniture is "buy the best you can afford." Inexpensive furniture won't enhance your home's decor and it won't last as long as quality pieces. It's a marvelous idea to mix furniture styles in a room but don't go overboard. If your tastes lean toward Traditional but you'd love to include a few Contemporary pieces—go ahead. Just be sure you don't mix too many styles and end up with a jumble of confusion.

The size of the furniture you choose should be in proportion to the size of the room. A huge sofa in a tiny room will tend to make the room look even smaller. Small tables will get lost in a large room. Select furniture that will be practical for your family's way of life. If you're cramped for storage space, for example choose commodes or other end tables that provide extra storage space.

Our home decorating experts can help you select the right furnishings for your home. Stop in and talk with us today.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE E-608: Halsey Williams went to Mortuary College; then became head of one of the famous Flanner-Buchanan Funeral Homes at Indianapolis.

After a few years, he returned to serve as the mortician in the village near which we have our summer home on the farm.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I wish you'd explain in your daily column why some people have a morbid fear of attending a funeral?"

"Even if the departed is a beloved relative, sometimes we morticians find an aversion by the living parents, children or mate to entering our chapel.

"Could you explain why some people thus shun funerals while others wish a final view of their departed loved one?"

Sadness And Joy
A funeral presents a strange psychological paradox.

For it is supposed to be an occasion to great joy, albeit the usual copious tears!

"Dr. Crane," you may wonder, "how can a tearful time of sadness be reconciled with a feeling of joy?"

"Aren't those two emotions antithetical or opposites?"

Yes, they are opposing emotional states but are interwoven in an alternating fashion among those who believe in Heaven.

Jesus thus reproved his Apostles for their sadness at the thought of His death, for in John 14:28, Christ said:

"If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father. . ."

Nevertheless, Jesus Himself shed tears at the tomb of His good friend, Lazarus, the brother of Martha and Mary (John 11:35).

Yet Jesus knew it wouldn't be long till He joined Lazarus in Heaven.

Still, He wept at the tomb! Why?

Because we tend to become introverted at the death of a loved one and thus feel bereft at losing a valued human confidant.

So the tears at funerals are really an evidence of our own pre-occupation with ourselves!

But when we extrovert our attention and think of the greater happiness of the departed, we then are able to rejoice, even amidst our tears.

This paradoxical emotion is also evident at a wedding or when we send our child off to college.

Our tears are then introverted evidences of selfish concern, though we logically know we should rejoice for the expanding happiness of the one to whom we bid adieu.

Non-church people are more prone to the funeral phobia, for they are not convinced of a Heaven, so they dread viewing the casket since they feel it marks "finis" and forever!

Others are overwhelmed with guilt complexes so they shun looking on the one whom they feel they have cheated, deceived or injured in some psychological manner.

Actually, it is a tonic for the soul to attend a funeral, for at such a time, we are contemplating eternal verities and more nearly in tune with Deity than during our usual pre-occupation with the petty problems of our mundane existence.

Morticians also erase the lines of pain and suffering, thus letting us view the peaceful, half smiling visage of our departed, thereby erasing our memory of the latter's final painful hours of life down here on earth!

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My question has to do with the possible harmful effects of exercise in older people. I am 58, have exercised all my life, and still love to do so every day.

Four years ago a small bone growth appeared on my left shoulder, and a doctor said it was due to demineralization and advised me to stop lifting weights. I switched to a "Bullworker," which I'm sure you're familiar with. Just recently I have noticed a small, bony growth on the outside of my left elbow, and a small one on my right wrist.

Should I stop putting any strain on all arm and shoulder joints, as using the Bullworker does? Is there any diet supplement which might possibly avoid such demineralization, if indeed, that is what the difficulty is? Perhaps I should restrict myself just to loosening up exercises? I'd appreciate your comments.

DEAR READER — The first question is whether or not you really have demineralization. You have described deposits or bone formation, not bone destruction. It is true that as bone degenerates and reforms, the reforming process may form spurs as you see in degenerative arthritis of the spine and other conditions. Nevertheless, all bone growths are not the result of bone degeneration and regrowth.

Exercise does not cause demineralization. Actually, it often builds stronger bones. Increasing bone density through exercise was one approach to prepare men for the demineralization that occurs during weightlessness in prolonged space flights.

Localized bony growth can be caused by improper forms of exercise. Isometric exercises are a good example. Sustained strain on one point where a ligament or tendon attaches may lead to a localized point of bony growth. This is why using muscles and joints through their full range of motion is advisable, as opposed to tensing or straining with the muscle in one fixed position.

If a person has demineralization for some reason, it may be necessary to stop or change the type of exercise. Maintaining both strength and flexibility are still important.

You might still be able to exercise with lighter weights.

In most kitchens the Cabinets work as hard as the cook.

Kitchen Cabinets do a variety of jobs — from providing storage and countertop space to setting the room's decorative tone. A sufficient number of accessible cabinets makes a kitchen more convenient. Not surprisingly, new cabinets rank as a key factor in kitchen remodeling.

A recent survey by the Bureau of Building Marketing Research reports that 76% of professionally remodeled kitchens feature new cabinets. Cabinet installation is also included in about 40% of kitchens remodeled by do-it-yourselfers. Either way, selecting our line of Schmidt Cabinets can play a big part in successful kitchen upgrading.

Committee formed to explore 1976 Reagan candidacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A committee is being formed to explore and possibly organize a 1976 presidential campaign for former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, Republican sources said today.

However, there was disagreement whether the impending move had Reagan's direct blessing or whether it represents an effort by friends and supporters to demonstrate the substantial backing needed to convince him to challenge President Ford.

Knight newspapers reported that Reagan had reached a tentative decision to run against Ford, who formally unveiled his own 1976 candidacy today, and that the presence in Washington of longtime adviser Lyn C. Nofziger is the tipoff.

However, another source disputed that interpretation and said the former governor was more likely to have indicated they could proceed without his blessing, and that he would await developments.

The source said he felt that Reagan probably told Nofziger, who arrived in Washington Monday, that "if you do it, based upon what you find, I'll make my decision."

In 1965, when some California Republicans wanted Reagan to seek the governorship, a committee was formed to finance his travels and speeches that led to an eventual decision to run, the source added.

A leading conservative operative, meanwhile, said that he has been expecting formation of a Reagan organization to raise funds and organize a possible challenge to Ford.

Party conservatives have been eager for a Reagan candidacy, believing that the former governor would stand a good chance of winning the nomination.

However, a recent Harris poll showed Ford, who earlier had led Reagan by a 30-23 margin among Republicans, now held a 40-17 margin.

The Knight Newspapers story published in the Miami Herald and other papers said Reagan had made a decision and that the Reagan-for-President Committee would be formed later in July.

Nofziger, who the story said is putting the organization together, met Monday with attorney John Sears, a key organizer of Richard M. Nixon's 1968 campaign and a political intimate of the former California governor.

Peter Hannaford, a Reagan spokesman in Los Angeles, said the Knight story is not correct and Reagan has not made any decision.

What is the Title 20 plan for social services? How does it relate to the elderly, and where can I obtain more information about it? — M. H.

Dear Mrs. H:
Title 20 is an addition to the United States Social Security Act. Its purpose is to help provide a wide range of social services to persons and families with low incomes, including the aged, blind and disabled. Although Title 20 is part of the Social Security law, persons will not qualify for social services unless they meet certain requirements of financial need. The services include adult day care, homemaker and home health aide services, information and referral, transportation, individual and group counseling, legal aid, chore services, and others. The intent of the law is to help people become economically self-supporting, to enhance their personal self-sufficiency, to avoid conditions of abuse or neglect, to prevent institutionalization when other alternatives may be available, and to secure proper institutional placement when it is essential.

The Illinois Department of Public Aid has just finished preparing a statewide plan for administering social services under Title 20. In addition to Public Aid, the services will also be provided by the Department on Aging, the Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities, the Department of Children and Family Services, and the Department of Corrections. A total of $318 million will be available for social services in Illinois between Oct. 1, 1975, and June 30, 1977.

The state plan sets forth the manner in which the money will be spent. However, it is not a final document but rather a blueprint subject to change. Starting July 1, the public has a 45-day period to offer comments and criticisms. You can write a letter to the Department of Public Aid, work through local community organizations which are active in social services, or take part in public hearings throughout the state which are scheduled for the first week in August. It is important that the elderly receive their fair share of Title 20 monies, and it is up to citizens to describe the urgency of particular needs to the Department of Public Aid.

Anyone can obtain a summary of the plan at the county or regional Public Aid office. You may also ask for a copy by calling a toll-free number (800-972-4210; between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday—until Aug. 15. Or, you can write the Bureau of Social Services, Illinois Department of Public Aid, 624 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 60605.

Here is a schedule of the public hearings on the Social Services State Plan: Aug. 4, in Belleville at Augustine's from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and in Marion at the State Regional Office Building from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.; Aug. 5, in Champaign at the State Regional Office Building from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and in Springfield at the Department of Transportation building from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.; Aug. 6, in Peoria at City Hall from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and in Rock Island, City Building, from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.; Aug. 7, in Chicago at Kennedy-King College from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and also in Chicago, at McCormick Boys Club from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.; Aug. 8, in Rockford at the State Regional Office Building from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

You can also look in your local newspaper for summaries of the social services plan. Federal law requires that the plan be published in area newspapers.

Which people will be eligible for social services under Title 20? Will it be limited to public aid recipients? — R. K. Dear Mrs. K:

At least half of the federal funds that come to Illinois under Title 20 must be spent on services to those eligible for Aid to Families With Dependent Children, Supplemental Security Income (also known as aid to the aged, blind and disabled), and Medicaid (medical assistance).

However, social services can be provided to families whose incomes, adjusted for family size, do not exceed 80 per cent of the state's median income. Certain services may even be provided to families with incomes of up to 115 per cent of the state median income. Fees must be charged to those with incomes above the 80 per cent level, and they may be charged to families with incomes below that level. Many services will be provided at no cost to the recipient. (According to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the median income in Illinois for a family of four is $15,152.)

Obtain a copy of the state social services plan and check with local or state agencies or consult with community groups to determine if you or your family might qualify for some of these services.

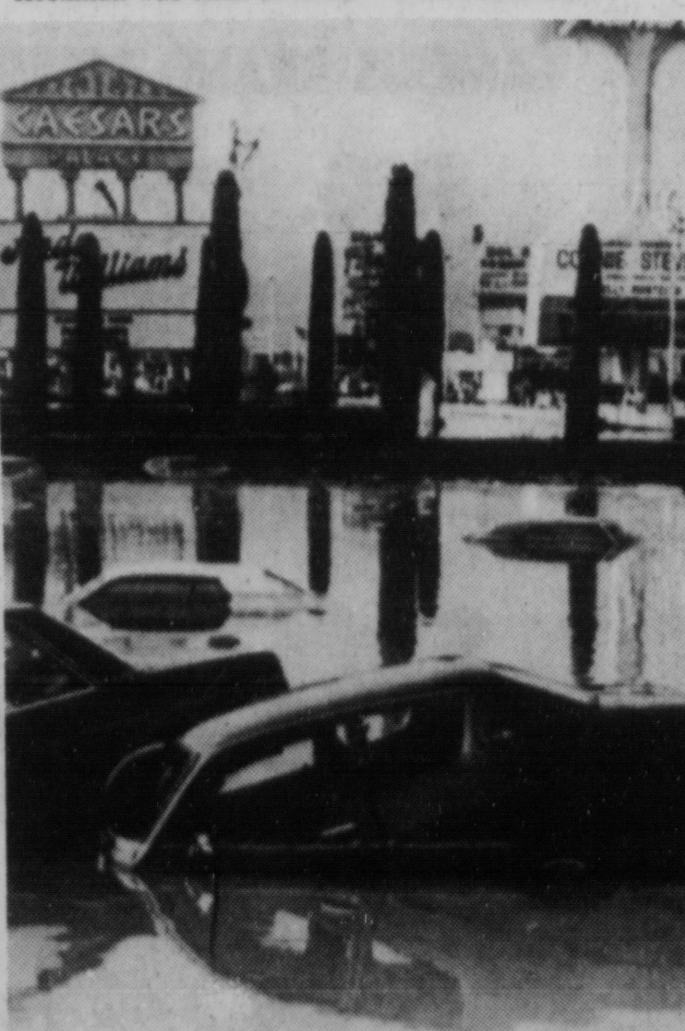

Persons may call the toll-free Senior Action Hotline 800-252-6565 with questions or complaints about government agencies or programs or for information about tax relief, health care, food stamps, Social Security, employment, housing or legal aid.

In Dixon persons may call the Lee County Council for Aging 288-2117.

Supply of hogs has decreased

By M. B. KIRLEY
Extension Economist

Farmers have 19 per cent fewer hogs for market than one year ago. A survey of hog producers as of June 1, released by the USDA on June 23, shows a continued decline in hog numbers. This is good news for the people who will have hogs to sell, but not for consumers. It is especially bad news for packers and market people, who depend on a large volume of hogs for their business. Also, it is not very encouraging to people who have corn to sell. Even with high exports, about a quarter of the corn crop is fed to hogs.

This survey covered all of the United States, in contrast to the quarterly survey (on March 1) which included only the fourteen major hog-producing states. Farmers reported they had 19 per cent fewer hogs with a total of 48.2 million head, 17 per cent less breeding stock with 7.4 million, and 19 per cent less market hogs at 40.8 million head than a year ago. Further, they planned to have 13 per cent fewer sows farrowing in the June-to-November period than a year ago. They actually had

Boost in soybean market explained

A major boost for soybean market development—to the tune of $100,000—has been provided by Illinois farmers through the state's soybean checkoff, according to Allan Aves of Kirkland, chairman of the Illinois Program Operating Board.

The allocation of $100,000 is the total amount designated by the program operating board for market development since the ¼-cent per bushel checkoff program began last fall.

Aves said the money, allocated to the American Soybean Association (ASA) Market Development Foundation, will help expand existing soybean markets and open up new ones for the bumper crop that is expected this year.

"The June 30 crop report indicates there are one million more acres of soybeans planted this year than last year," said Aves. "With a national average of 27 bushels per acre, we will have approximately an additional 27 million bushels of soybeans to sell to the world next year."

Aves contended that untapped markets for these additional soybeans do exist, pointing out that ASA's market development activities operate in only 36 countries and could expand into many others.

"Continued funding by Illinois and the 14 other soybean checkoff states are the key to opening up these new markets and boosting demand for U.S. soybeans," said Aves.

One bright prospect for a new soybean market, he said, is the Mideast, where petroleum export dollars are being used to upgrade diets.

Who's to blame for food costs?

CHICAGO — Everyone is blaming the farmer, the co-ops and the middleman for food costs, but the truth is that unconscionable profits are hard to find.

That is the opinion of Jim Thomson, editor, "Prairie Farmer," one of the nation's top rural publications.

"The consumer wants expensive built-in maid service, colorful packaging, and beautiful supermarkets with piped-in music," he says. "High labor and fuel costs and all the expensive extras the public wants leave the farmer with 39 cents of the consumer's food dollar. The retailer gets one cent to two cents net on the food dollar. Taking the rest are labor (more than half), elevator operator, freezer, trucker, distributor, crusher, broker, railroader, wholesaler, etc."

Thomson also says farm cooperatives are being blamed as monopoly powers that drive up food prices, urban people do not understand the marketing problems of farmers: "If anything, farmer co-ops need greater encouragement rather than less," he says. "As for the high cost of food, the USDA says that the farm value of a market basket of 65 representative foods fell 9.9 per cent between February, 1974, and February, 1975. During the same period retail prices of this market basket rose 10 per cent due to higher processing, marketing, and retailing charges. It could hardly be the monopoly power of the farmer that caused this."

"The witch hunt will continue, but the culprit is closer to home in Congress," says Thomson. "It is here that irresponsible spending policies have encouraged inflationary pressures and their dislocations of the economy."

"Prairie Farmer" is a Leisure Group I publication of American Broadcasting Companies, Inc.

Area family hosts IFYE student

For three weeks the Dale Baird family of Franklin Grove is hosting Maria Van Leeuwen of the Netherlands. Maria arrived in Illinois on June 28 as an International 4-H Youth Exchangee. The IFYE program is conducted by the National 4-H Foundation and Cooperative Extension Service in cooperation with the Dutch ministry of agriculture and Dutch rural youth organizations.

Maria is in Illinois to experience the American way of life, exchange ideas and observe Extension youth and adult programs. On July 19, Maria will go to Knox County to live with another family for three weeks.

Maria's family lives on a dairy farm near Oudewater in the Netherlands and she works as a nurse. Her oldest sister, Sue Ellen, is studying nursing. Host brothers Dale and Donald, and host sister, Suzanne, are all active 4-H members in Lee County; plus Dale and Mary Lou Baird are 4-H leaders.

Air tours will be given

AMBOY—The Soil and Water Conservation Districts of Lee and Ogle County will again join in sponsoring air tours this year to view conservation practices throughout the area.

All flights will be from Walgreen Air Field, Dixon, on Ill. 38. Tickets for adults are $5 and for children under 85 pounds $2.50. Pilots will fly over scenic spots in the area and farm site.

Individual and group legal counseling service for members is now available in some credit unions.

"The best thing on the market today, to combat soybean losses at harvest, is a floating cutter bar extension" (So states a noted agri-engineer, a leading authority on harvest of soybeans).

Hart-Carter cutter bar flexes and bends, helping you cut low with the contour of the ground. It is the perfect profit partner for the popular Hart-Carter pick-up reel.

Marshall heads NL Star pitching

MIKE MARSHALL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mike Marshall, last year's Cy Young Award winner, and two other Dodgers have been named to the nine-man National League All-Star pitching staff to face eight American League hurlers in the July 15 All-Star Game.

Los Angeles Manager Walter Alston on Monday announced his choice of Marshall, honored last year for his consistent relief pitching efforts, along with Dodger starting pitchers Andy Messersmith and Don Sutton, 12-8, to the National League All-Stars, who have won three straight mid-season classics.

Alston, manager of the National League All-Star team, also named Tom Seaver and southpaw teammate Jon Matlack of New York, left-hander Tug McGraw of Philadelphia, lefty Randy Jones of San Diego, southpaw Jerry Reuss of Pittsburgh and Phil Niekro of Atlanta.

The four National League southpaws and five right-handers will face an American League pitching crew including Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers of Oakland, Catfish Hunter of New York, Jim Kaat and Rich Gossage of Chicago, Nolan Ryan of California, Jim Palmer of Baltimore and Steve Busby of Kansas City.

All but two of the National League choices are repeaters on the All-Star squad. The exceptions are southpaws Jones and Reuss. Seaver's selection marks his eighth return to the squad.

Of the American League All-Star choices for the midseason classic at Milwaukee's County Stadium, Fingers, Hunter and Busby are repeaters from last year.

Seaver had the best winning percentage among the NL pitchers with a 12-4 record and an ERA of 1.85. Messersmith was 12-5 with a 2.08 average and Jones showed an 11-5 record and a stingy 1.77 ERA.

Messersmith leads the league in strikeouts with 122, followed by Seaver's 120 and Sutton's 118.

Marshall, who has a 3-5 record with four saves, and McGraw, 5-4 with eight saves, are the only two relief specialists representing the NL.

Reuss' record is 9-6 and Niekro's record is 8-7.

35 wins in 44 tries

The Big Red Machine is in high gear, rolling along so smoothly that even the man at the controls can't quite believe it.

"It's incredible," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson after his Reds' latest triumph, a 7-3 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies Monday night. That gave Cincinnati four wins in a row, seven in the last eight games and an amazing record of 35 victories in 44 outings dating back to May 21.

"No one is supposed to win like that," added Anderson. But the Reds are doing it, and as a result have opened a gaping 8½-game bulge over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

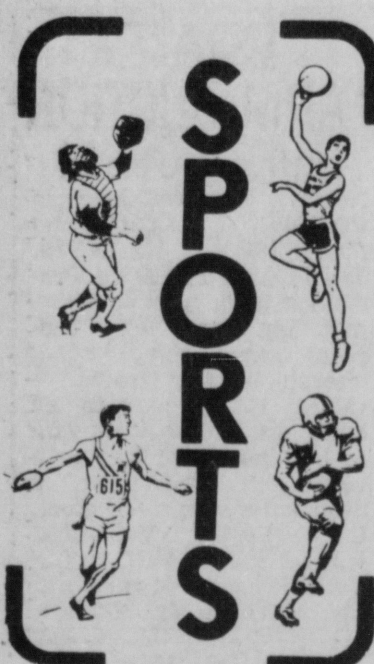

Astros 5, Expos 1

Houston got only four hits against Montreal, but all came in the fourth inning when the Astros sent 10 men to the plate and scored all their runs. Wilbur Howard's two-run single capped the uprising in support of Larry Dierker, who scattered eight hits.

Mets 3, Braves 1

Home runs by Rusty Staub and Dave Kingman backed the six-hit pitching of rookie Hank Webb, who posted his second major league victory — both over Atlanta.

"I needed this game," said Webb. "It's my first complete game in the big leagues, and it builds my confidence. There are such good pitchers on this staff, when I do get in I like to contribute."

Kim Krahenbuhl, Wendell Holmes, Dave Miller and Harold Wagner bettered bogey by 13 strokes to take the Men's Scrambled Egg Tournament over the weekend at the Dixon Country Club. Don Mewhirter, Jim Curtis, Ron Pierce and Reynolds Baker grabbed second with a +11.

Tied for third were the four-somes of Ken Detweiler, Tom Stewart, Robert McCrystal and Ron Hodapp, plus William Flanagan, Ernest Ward, James Patterson and Walter Knack. Taking fourth were Bradley Ludwig, Lauren Williamson, Don Bogott and John Discoe, while Bob Wallace, Jack Burke, Don Sprecher and Dr. Paul Tillman took fifth.

Walnut takes lead

KEWANEE—Walnut took over first place in the Quint County Senior Babe Ruth Baseball League with an 11-3 victory over the Kewanee Orange and a 15-5 decision over the Kewanee Blacks, here, over the weekend.

Earlier in the week, Walnut crushed Annawan 2-0 behind the no-hit pitching of Mike Munger. Munger also picked up the victory against the Kewanee Blacks by scattering four hits while striking out six and walking two.

Terry Andersen backed Munger with three doubles and four RBIs. Ken Wilcoxon drove in three runs, collected three hits including a double in three at bats and scored twice. Bill Ganschow added a double. Doug Parker accounted for two RBIs, with Dennis Smith and Kevin Rabe getting one each.

Walnut rallied for 11 runs in the seventh inning to defeat the Orange. Rabe singled and Andersen doubled to start the uprising. Dennis Smith doubled in one run before Kevin Anglin walked to load the bases.

Bill Ganschow singled in a pair before Munger walked. Wilcoxon followed with a single to plate a run, and a Gibson hit and two resultant errors allowed four more runs to score. Rabe tripled and Parker doubled to round out the inning. Anglin got the win by striking out eight and walking five.

Wilcoxon went three-for-three to highlight Munger's no-hitter versus Annawan which was called after four innings. Terry Hasbrook and Wilcoxon doubled, Bruce Gingrich and Wilcoxon tripled and Munger slammed a home run in the lop-sided win. Munger walked two and struck out four. Walnut, now 13-4 for the season, hosts La Moille in a non-conference contest on Wednesday.

Cards 8, Giants 6
Ted Simmons drove in three runs and Luis Melendez' triple highlighted a four-run first inning for the Cards, who collected six hits off Giants starter Mike Caldwell, 5-8, in the opening inning.

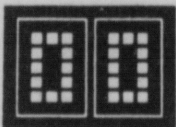

Afterwards, Giants Manager Wes Westrum became enraged at a question put to him by a local reporter, shouted and cursed at the writer and had him ejected from the San Francisco clubhouse.

Pirates 5, Cubs 0
Al Oliver belted a three-run homer and Ken Brett, Ramon Hernandez and Dave Giusti combined to stop the Cubs on five hits, all singles.

It was the 14th game in 11 days between the two clubs, and the Pirates won 11 of the meetings.

Tigers 2, White Sox 1
Tom Walker, 3-6, scattered eight hits and outdueled Chicago's Jim Kaat, 13-5, who was named to the AL All-Star team earlier in the day. The only run off Walker, 3-6, was Ken Henderson's homer in the second inning. Detroit scored both runs in the fourth on Gary Sutherland's single, Leon Roberts' triple and Willie Horton's sacrifice fly.
